

Moving ahead Living Network Rail's values

Other companies have goals and values but we live and breath them every day.

Hayley Golder-Oppong has recently joined us as an operational planner and will be based at our new National Centre. Our new building has been designed with sustainability at its heart and will bring long-term investment to the local economy.

Our National Centre will bring together key activities including teams from finance, property, asset management and planning. It will enable us to accelerate the pace of cultural and behavioural change by bringing the right people together into a single location.

When Hayley saw a feature on the news about our National Centre in Milton Keynes, she decided to explore what opportunities there were for her here at Network Rail.

After checking out Network Rail's website I could clearly see that they care for their staff. The offices are really nice! Bonuses, pensions, development and training, plus 28 days' holiday!

In order to create a world-class railway, we need people who will live and breathe our values: Determination, Respect, Teamwork and Pride. For Hayley, this is what sets us apart from the rest.

Other companies have goals and values but do not live them and demonstrate them daily as with Network Rail... making it a positive and professional workplace.

Hayley has begun her career with us with extensive training, and she has already gained a range of expert knowledge, including the vast amount of acronyms used across the railway!

I believe that the knowledge I gained from the excellent training I received, added to my determination to do my job well, will make me successful at Network Rail. I still have a lot of training to complete and I'm sure I will continue to learn and develop throughout my career at Network Rail.

And Hayley's top tip for people joining Network Rail?

Don't be nervous. I was, and there was no need! I've never been made to feel so welcome.

We wish Hayley every success for a bright future with us.
